INSTRUCTIONS

1. Wipe down the dragon with a dry Hydra Art Sponge.
2. Paint the rocks with 1 coat of Down to Earth.
3. Take a damp Hydra Art Sponge and wipe away the excess Down to Earth color, leaving the color in the crevices.
4. Paint the dragon's body with 2-3 coats of Tuxedo. Leave the inside of the mouth and teeth unpainted. Paint the inside edges of the eyes using Tuxedo.
5. Paint the inside of the dragon's mouth with 1-2 coats of Melon-Choly.
6. Paint the dragon's teeth with 1 coat of Cotton Tail.
7. Water down Gray Hare to a skim milk consistency. Paint 1-2 coats of the color wash over the rocks.
8. Clear glaze and fire to cone 06.
9. After the dragon has been clear glazed and fired, you can now apply the Mother of Pearl. Be sure to work in a well ventilated area, and if you have breathing issues, wear a respirator mask.
10. Pour a nickel-sized amount of Mother of Pearl onto your palette. If the luster is slightly too thick or sticky, dip a small round brush into the Thinner for Overglaze and dab off any excess. Mix this thinner (approx. 3% of thinner to the amount of overglaze) into the luster onto your palette. If the overglaze is runny, no thinner is needed.
11. Using a large round brush, paint 1 thin layer of Mother of Pearl to the dragon's body. Swirl the overglaze as you apply it. Cover all black areas, and cover the teeth as well.
12. Let the dragon dry in a moisture-free (dry) area for a few hours.
13. Fire to cone 018 on a slow setting.
14. Once fired, enjoy seeing your iridescent Lighted Fierce Dragon Bust glow and shine!
